- To report a missing child during a disaster, contact the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children (NCMEC), which operates the National Emergency Child Locater Center at 1-800-843-5678. Anyone who finds a child who is separated from their parents or legal caregivers should first contact the local police. In addition, individuals can use the Unaccompanied Minors Registry to enter basic information for the child, which should ideally include a recent photo. No matter how you report, please indicate to NCMEC if the missing child has a disability or access or functional need.
- Family and friends of people in the disaster-affected areas are urged to check social network sites for information about your loved ones. Also, use the American Red Cross Safe and Well program to let family members know you are safe or looking for loved ones.

- If Hurricane Helene knocked out your power, stay safe:
 - * Keep freezers and fridges closed.
 - Switch off electronics to avoid damage from surges.
 - Place generators outside, at least 20 ft. away from the house.
 - Do not use a gas stove to heat your home.
 - Learn More: ready.gov/power-outages
- View this copy in: Spanish | French | Haitian Creole | Vietnamese | Simplified Chinese | Korean

Sample Text

- When the power comes back on, wait for a few minutes before turning on major appliances to help eliminate problems that could occur if there's a sharp increase in demand.
- When in doubt, throw it out! Throw away any food that has been exposed to temperatures 40 degrees or higher for two hours or more or that has unusual odor, color or texture. If the power is out for more than a day, discard any medication that should be refrigerated unless the drug's label says otherwise.

 Are you looking for ways to help survivors affected by Hurricane Helene? The @NationalVOAD is a great place to find trusted organizations that are helping the various communities. The best way to help after a disaster is through cash donations. Check out: nvoad.org

Social Media Sample Text Option 2

When disasters like Helene strike, our voluntary & faith-based partners are always quick to offer support. Addressing needs like hot meals, debris removal, & distributing supplies are some of the many ways these agencies are helping survivors on the ground.

Sample Text

- Financial contributions to recognized disaster relief organizations are the fastest, most flexible and most effective method of donating. Organizations on the ground know what items and quantities are needed, often buy in bulk with discounts and, if possible, purchase through businesses local to the disaster, which supports economic recovery.
- Don't self-deploy to disaster areas. Trusted organizations in the affected areas know where volunteers are needed. Work with an established organization to make sure you have the appropriate safety, training and skills needed to respond.
- FEMA Voluntary Agency Liaisons (VALs) build relationships and coordinate efforts with voluntary, faith-based and community organizations active in disasters.

Beware of Fraud & Scams | Download the Graphic in Multiple Languages

- Social Media Sample Text Option 1
- Be aware that after a disaster, there often are many rumors and scams. Watch for & report suspicious activity.
- Beware of scammers when applying for disaster assistance:
 - Ask our reps to show you a photo ID badge.
 - Keep your registration number & personal information safe.
 - Never agree to pay an application fee.
 - For More Information Visit: fema.gov/disaster-fraud
- Sample Text
- Beware of fraud and scams. After a disaster, there are often scams and rumors that target survivors. Please use official local, state and federal sources for credible information. Survivors should never trust someone claiming to be a disaster assistance employee asking for money. Local and federal disaster assistance workers do not solicit or accept money.

Difference Between Individual Assistance Versus Public Assistance Grant Programs | Download the Graphic in Multiple languages

- Social Media Sample Text Option
- After a disaster like Helene, communities may need funding support to recover. That's when @fema steps in with public assistance grants. These funds help the state with debris removal, emergency response & restoring infrastructure.

Do you know the difference between our Individual Assistance & Public Assistance programs?

- 🗵 IA: Funding for survivors who have expenses and serious needs not covered by insurance.
- ☑ PA: Funds given to local & state governments to help communities recover from disasters.
- Sample Text
- How to Apply for Public Assistance:

When ready to apply, applicants should use the Public Assistance Grants Portal to account for all activities associated with their damage claims.

Applicants can use the grants portal to:

- Register for and update an applicant profile.
- Submit a "Request for Public Assistance"
- Upload project documentation.

Visit the Tools and Resources page for the schedule of equipment rate, project templates, cost estimating tools and other resources to support the application process.
